

The Hope-o-potamus

By Greg James and Chris Smith

Read it for free: literacytrust.org.uk/bookofhopes

The Book of Hopes, published by Bloomsbury Children's Books 2020

Cover illustration copyright © Axel Scheffler 2020

Our lesson presentation needs to be viewed in 'Slideshow Mode' in Microsoft PowerPoint for optimum performance.

BLOOMSBURY

The Hope-o-potamus

The Hope-o-potamus is a rhyming story written by Greg James and Chris Smith.

It can be found inside The Book of Hopes.

Start

The Hope-o-potamus

In a drought, in the dust, in a dry river bed
A sad hippopotamus hung his grey head.
He'd had nothing to drink since the start of this week.
If he didn't find water things could get quite bleak.

The hippo was sad and the hippo was hot.
But did he sit down and give in? Of course not!
He remembered the words of a wise old giraffe,
That he'd heard long ago, when he'd been a young calf:

Back

Next

The Hope-o-potamus

'There'll be times in your life when your road will be tough.
You'll be tempted to say that you've had quite enough.
'There'll be people that try and convince you to stop,
And you'll feel that you're just about ready to drop.

But those are the times when you've got to keep moving,
And with every small step you will see things improving.
Just point any way that seems hopeful to you,
You move one foot forwards, then foot number two.

Back

Next

The Hope-o-potamus

Then follow this up with your other two feet,
Then return to foot one, and repeat and repeat.
Remember these words,' said the wise old giraffe,
To our hero the hippo, when he was a calf.

So the hippopotamus nodded his head.
'I'll keep plodding and see where I get to,' he said,
And he look all around at the arid terrain,
And thought, 'Will I ever find water again?'

Back

Next

The Hope-o-potamus

Ahead, a high mountain rose up in the distance.
It looked rocky and steep, but with hippo-persistence,
He decided he'd walk it 'til he had overcome it,
In case there were better things over the summit.

First he came to a desert, which wasn't too handy.
It was hard to walk through, rather slippy and sandy.
A camel was sitting on top of a dune,
And it told the hippo, 'You absolute loon!

Back

Next

The Hope-o-potamus

Turn around! Go back! Or you'll look like a chump.
There's no water this way, except this in my hump.'
But the hippopotamus shook his head.
'Just a bit further,' he boldly said.

One step at a time he continued his journey,
Till he came to a jungle – dark, dank, green and ferny.
The jungle was thick and the creepers were creepy,
And a large sloth hung down from a branch looking sleepy.

Back

Next

The Hope-o-potamus

'This forest... it goes on for miles,' he said, yawning,
'Why don't you just hang here with me till the morning?'
The hippo – though tempted – again shook his head.
'Just a bit further,' he bravely said.

He plunged on through the jungle, and after a while
He arrived at the mountain – the ultimate trial.
Poor hippo was tired, almost giving up hope.
But – one step at a time – he pushed on up the slope.

Back

Next

The Hope-o-potamus

The mountain was rocky and strewn with huge boulders;
Then stones hurt his feet and the sun scorched his shoulders.
A lion sat there on a rocky outcropping,
And the lion called out, 'You're much better off stopping.'

But the hippopotamus shook his head.
'Just a bit further,' he proudly said.
His heart was so heavy, his feet were so sore,
But he climbed and he climbed – one step, then one step more.

Back

Next

The Hope-o-potamus

And, just when he was feeling ready to drop,
He finally realised that he'd reached the top.
And a splendid sight met his eyes when he looked down:
A wide muddy waterhole, gleaming and brown.

He could see lots of splashing – someone was there bathing.
A hippo! A friend! And they seemed to be waving.
And the hippopotamus nodded his head.
'I'm glad that I chose to keep going,' he said.

Back

Next

The Hope-o-potamus

Then a voice from behind him called out, 'We were wrong!'
The lion, sloth and camel had followed along.
And the animals cried, 'You're more brave than the lot of us.'
Hip hip hooray for the hope-o-potamus!'

Back

Next

Hippo-Persistence

In the rhyming story, the hope-o-potamus never gives up.

Can you think of a time when you didn't give up?

Back

Next

Giving Encouragement

In the rhyming story, the hope-o-potamus meets lots of animals who tell him to give up.

What would you have said to the hope-o-potamus to help him not to give up?

Back

Next

Becoming a Hope-o-potamus

Sometimes, when things are difficult, you might feel like giving up.

However, just like the hope-o-potamus, it's important to keep trying.

Next time you feel like giving up, try becoming a hope-o-potamus!

Back

Next

I think this story demonstrates how to be a good friend and how to encourage your friends to be resilient and to persevere.

In the Bible, there are many examples of encouragement.

Joshua was told by God to continue Moses' work and finish the job of leading people into the promised land.

Joshua 1:9 | repeat, be strong and brave! Don't be afraid and don't panic, for I, the LORD your God, am with you in all you do.

What do you think this means to Christians? Could this help you get through situations that you find difficult? How?

Let us pray...

Dear God,

Thank you for giving us the opportunities in life to overcome and succeed.

For showing us how to support and encourage others,

and for being there as a source of strength when we need it most.

Amen

As you go about the rest of your week, try to remember that there are lots of people believing in you and to show your belief in others!

